In re: Declaring Rabies a Disease that Warrants Baiting Pursuant to Section 3701.14 of the Revised Code

Director's Journal Entry

I, Theodore E. Wymyslo, M.D., Director of the Ohio Department of Health, declare rabies to be a significant and continuing health risk in Ashtabula, Belmont, Carroll, Columbiana, Cuyahoga, Geauga, Harrison, Jefferson, Portage, Lake, Mahoning, Monroe, Summit, Trumbull and Washington counties. Accordingly, I reaffirm my predecessors' Journal Entries ordering the initiation of a population-based oral rabies vaccination program (hereinafter "baiting") for wild raccoons within the named counties. The time, place, and manner of the baiting will be implemented as determined necessary under my authority. The purpose of such action is to control and suppress rabies as well as protect the people against diseases of lower animals pursuant to section 3701.14 of the Revised Code.

By this Journal Entry, I reauthorize the Ohio Department of Health's continuing vaccination of the wild raccoon population by baiting with the assistance of local departments of health and other federal, state, and local authority or assets. The bait with vaccine shall be distributed in areas accessible to and/or proximate to raccoon habitats. Additionally, pursuant to R.C. 3701.06, I authorize the local health departments and the United States Department of Agriculture to, without fee or hindrance, enter, examine, and distribute baits with vaccine on all grounds and places in furtherance of this order.

Because unvaccinated dogs and cats pose a significant health risk in exposing the public to rabies and recent indication is that rabies is on the rise among the domesticated populations, I hereby reinstate the October 21, 1997 order (effective November 1, 1997) requiring the vaccination of all dogs and cats older than fourteen weeks in the above named counties. Rabies vaccinations must be performed by a licensed veterinarian.

This Journal Entry shall be effective immediately upon execution and shall remain in full force and effect until further notice.
